Stripper Peki D'Oslo—the friend who stole from her was jailed yesterday.

Peki felt naked without her mink

By GEORGE GLENTON

STRIP-GIRL Peki D'Oslo talked yesterday about the night she found that someone had ransacked her hotel room while she was out at work. The raider had taken her mink stole, £200 cash, jewel case, radio, French passport, and flick-knife. "I felt naked without all those things—especially the stole," Miss D'Oslo said yesterday, after the raider had been jailed at London Sessions. "They were all I had in London."

The raider, 20-year-old Leigh Leslie Davies, of Glebe-place, Chelsea, was jailed for fifteen months on charges of breaking into Miss D'Oslo's room at the Leinster Towers Hotel, Bayswater, and stealing.

John Scott-Lewis, 21, of the same address, was remanded in custody for a month after pleading guilty to receiving part of the stolen property and cash.

Miss D'Oslo, whose real name is Amanda Tapp, said afterwards that Davies had given her a £400 cheque to pay for the stolen property.

She added: "We made friends soon after I came to England from France three months ago.

"I liked him very much. He could speak excellent French, and—coming from Paris—this meant a lot to me."

BLONDE BANK RAIDER

An attractive well-dressed blonde, about 27, held up a Hamburg bank with a revolver yesterday and made off with more than £250.

Car-crash that 'jumped' wife into middle-age

A WIFE claimed yesterday that she was vivacious and young until a car-crash two years ago "jumped" her, into rather tired middle age.

Mrs. Mary Rowntree, 42, of Summerfields-lane, Frensham, Surrey, was in her husband's stationary car when another car ran head-on into them in 1963.

She told Mr. Justice Phillimore in the High Court that she finished up with fourteen scars. The worst, five inches long, was on the left hand side of her face.

Now she had dizzy attacks and suffered from violent headaches. Her husband said she had become extremely intolerant towards him and their three teenage daughters.

Mr. Peter Shepherd, of Sonning-on-Thames, Berks, the driver of the other car, admitted liability.

Mrs. Rowntree was awarded £4,500 damages and costs.

SID DREAMS OF DISASTERS

GARDENER Sid Green, 62, dreamed that a helicopter crashed near his home, killing one of the crew.

That was four days ago. Yesterday, an RAF Dragon Fly helicopter crashed in a field 400 yards from Sid's home at Frensham, near Farnham, Surrey.

And one of the two-man crew died—Squadron-Leader J. S. Hurrell.

Wing-Commander P. J. Bardon was pulled semi-conscious from the blazing wreckage.

His rescuers were mush-
